I am a flight attendant for Northwest Airlines and I am totally against letting people use cell phones while in the air. Isn't it enough that people can use cell phones everywhere else they can get a signal. Just like smoking, why do the rest of us have to put up with the distractions or people's impoliteness or rudeness of using phones in public places. I think phones should not only be banned from being used while in the air but from public places, i.e. restaurants, grocery stores, etc. How is it that we all lived just fine before cell phones came along? People deserve some piece and quiet while flying.
